Hawaiian Electric Company.

The cleanest, brightest rafest and really in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honolulu came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and said: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipped over and it came so near setting first othe house and burning my children and I take no more risks."

This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light.

Just think it over and make up your mind that you want the best and safest light; send for the Hawaiian Electric Company and tell them what you want.

The continuous appearance of an advertisement is an endorsement of OLD PIPES.

Before the discovery of the famous veed, smoking was undoubtedly indulged in. Herbs and leaves were smoked for medicine purposes, and to this day, in some parts of England, colt's foot, yarrow, and other plants are still used in the same way, with evident relish and belief in their effieacy. Of the pipes of the anti-tobacco period, we know little or nothing, the earliest specimens to be found in collections dating from the time of Queen Elizabeth, during whose reign tobacco was introduced. A German traveler who visited England in those days was much surprised to see Englishmen "draw the smoke into their mouths (through pipes of clay), which they puff out again through their nostrils like funnels." The pipes of this period have very small barrel shaped bowls, and are usually of better clay and make than those of the succeeding reigns. In the time of James I and Charles I the bowls slightly increased in size, but the form remained pretty much the same. The pipes in Many patrons waiting to be meas- vogue during the Commonwealth and tion. The short pipe, known in Iresame time as the ordinary barrel shape with a long stem. Barrel shaped pies ceased to be the fashion with the reign of James II, when the elongated bowl of the time of William and Mary came into favor. Hogarth, in his drawings, depicts the favorite form of the reign of Queen Anne and George I. With the introduction of the Dutch type of tobacco pipe the flat spur disappeared, as did the barrel shape bowl, to be succeeded by one of more prominence, if of less utility. large demand.
